Atheism What Everyone Needs To Know

It will, however, be argued by such atheists, against what they take to be dogmatic aprioristic atheists, that the atheist should be a fallibilist and remain open-minded about what the future may bring. There may, after all, be such transcendent facts, such metaphysical realities. It is not that such a fallibilistic atheist is really an agnostic who believes that he is not justified in either asserting that God exists or denying that he exists and that what he must reasonably do is suspend ...

Older dictionaries define atheism as " a belief that there is no God. " . Clearly, theistic influence taints these definitions. The fact that dictionaries define Atheism as " there is no God " betrays the (mono)theistic influence. Without the (mono)theistic influence, the definition would at least read " there are no gods. " .
