A wildly original debut, Maynard and Jennica is both a hilarious urban comedy and a captivating love story. In the summer of 2000, while riding the uptown number 6 train, the musician/filmmaker Maynard Gogarty first encounters the beautiful Jennica Green. Though their initial meeting is brief, when fate next brings them together a romance ensues, and as with most things in life, everyone has an opinion.

For the first 150 pages or so, "Maynard & Jennica" breezes airily along, sketching outlines of the two main characters. They have rich internal dialogues with themselves, and so by extension with you, the voyeuristic reader. This is how you discover their endearing & quirky little peccadilloes and intellectual neuroses.

Maynard and Jennica Quotes by Rudolph Delson

Maynard is a defeated musician, a reformed misanthrope who makes a hobby of surreptitiously filming the fashion faux pas of New York City subway commuters. On an uptown Number Six Train, in the summer of 2000, he meets Jennica, a nostalgic Californian and Princeton graduate who calculates that she's been lonesome 68.53% of her adult life.

Like Rashomon on Red Bull no, make that steroids ex-lawyer Rudolph Delson's debut novel, Maynard & Jennica, scrutinizes a New York City love affair from nearly three dozen points of view, including those of dead relatives, a macaw and a subway emergency brake. Presumably the kitchen sink had no particular insight.

Rudolph Delson (Author of Maynard and Jennica)

The filmic quality is so apparent that it's surprising Delson bothered with the book format at all - Maynard and Jennica has already been optioned by the producer Scott Rudin, of The Truman Show and The Queen fame. With the cutesy gift of a Maine coon cat to launch the couple's romance, plenty of nauseating dialogue regarding the naming of the animal and subsequent descriptions of how pleasant it is to be in a relationship, it has all the ingredients of a successful romcom.

A question of taste - New Statesman

Maynard is a defeated musician who makes a hobby of filming the fashion faux pas of subway commuters. He meets Jennica, a lovely and nostalgic Californian, who wants to live an "illustrious" New York life, but who calculates that she's been lonesome 68.53% of the time.
