I believe the author drove home the view that Paul had concerning the promised outpouring, or God's returning presence, of His Spirit. The apostle Paul understood the importance of the Spirit of God in the lives of the believers that they may be renewed, sanctified, transformed, and empowered to live a life worthy of their calling and to attain salvation which will be consummated sometime in the future.

After decades of writing commentaries on Paul ' s letters, Gordon Fee began to see a disconnect between how Paul describes the local church and how the church operates today, something is skewed. His concern boiled down to how churches understood the person and role of the Holy Spirit. Fee concluded that the contemporary Western church, Pentecostal and non-Pentecostal, is missing the point of ...

Fee ' s Paul, the Spirit, and the People of God

The book ' s title pointedly reflects, then, Fee ' s bedrock convictions about Paul ' s theology of the Spirit. The Spirit is a person who embodies the presence of God himself, a person who indwells and empowers God ' s people in this present age. The book represents more than an exegetical exercise for the author.
