both customers and their own companies. Capon and Tubridy show that today's most successful companies are customer-motivated organizations where sales has the recognized responsibility for identifying customer needs and crafting and delivering solutions to meet those needs as an equal partner with marketing, product development, and other functions. They show an irrepressible flair for differentiating products in categories where competitors have resigned themselves to believing that differentiation is impossible. Their customer-motivated sales machines deliver the numbers, keep competitors at bay, and unlike products and programs, are very difficult to replicate. This book should also be invaluable for other functional managers, especially those that interface with sales. Companywide managers, including CEOs, should also benefit as they learn how to leverage sales excellence to achieve superior business performance.

your company's sales efforts and strategy? It's real—and a huge vulnerability. Addressing that gap, actionably and with attention to relevant research, is the focus of this book. In Aligning Strategy and Sales, Harvard Business School professor Frank Cespedes equips you to link your go-to-market initiatives with strategic goals. Cespedes offers a road map to articulate strategy in ways that people in the field can understand and that will fuel the behaviors required for profitable growth. Without that alignment, leaders will press for better execution when they need a better strategy, or change strategic direction with great cost and turmoil when they should focus on the basics of sales execution. With thoughtful, clear, and engaging examples, Aligning Strategy and Sales provides a framework for diagnosing and managing the core levers available for effective selling in any organization. It will give you the know-how and tools to move from ideas to action and build a sales effort linked to your firm's unique goals, not a generic selling formula. Cespedes shows how sales efforts affect all elements of value creation in a
