In the years between 1848 and 1918, the Habsburg Empire was an intensely pluricultural space that brought together numerous " nationalities " under constantly changing – and contested – linguistic regimes. The multifaceted forms of translation and interpreting, marked by national struggles and extensive multilingualism, played a crucial role in constructing cultures within the Habsburg space. This book traces translation and interpreting practices in the Empire ' s administration, courts and diplomatic service, and takes account of the " habitualized " translation carried out in everyday life. It then details the flows of translation among the Habsburg crownlands and between these and other European languages, with a special focus on Italian – German exchange. Applying a broad concept of " cultural translation " and working with sociological tools, the book addresses the mechanisms by which translation and interpreting constructs cultures, and delineates a model of the Habsburg Monarchy ' s " pluricultural space of communication " that is also applicable to other multilingual settings.
